

Applying a Circular Economy to Fashion

Danielle Fichera has a significant opportunity to help create a shift in the negative impacts of fashion on our environment. Through creating high-quality garments and utilizing sustainable materials and manufacturing processes, we can participate in a circular model where clothing is used for a longer period of time, reused within the second-hand industry, and repaired if needed.

